7 Common Myths About Prenuptial Agreements—Debunked by an Orange County Attorney

When couples plan their marriage, the topic of prenuptial agreements often brings hesitation and misconceptions. Many believe prenups are only for the wealthy, or that they signal a lack of trust. As an experienced Orange County prenuptial agreement attorney, Jos Family Law debunks the top myths and helps couples understand why these agreements can actually strengthen a relationship.

Myth 1: Prenups Are Only for the Rich

Truth: While high-net-worth individuals may need more comprehensive protection, prenups benefit couples of all financial backgrounds. They outline responsibilities, divide debts, and simplify the legal process if a separation ever occurs. If you own property, have student loans, or expect future inheritance, a prenup can safeguard both parties.

Myth 2: Prenups Mean You Don't Trust Each Other

Truth: A prenuptial agreement isn't about distrust—it's about clarity. When you openly discuss finances and future expectations, you build stronger communication. A well-crafted prenup shows mutual respect and ensures neither partner is left vulnerable.

Myth 3: You Can Do It Yourself With an Online Template

Truth: California has strict requirements for enforceability. A generic online form can miss vital elements, leading to legal loopholes. An experienced Orange County prenuptial agreement attorney ensures your contract meets California laws under the Uniform Premarital Agreement Act (UPAA) and is properly notarized.

Myth 4: It Only Protects the Wealthier Partner

Truth: A prenuptial agreement can protect both partners. You can include terms for spousal support, divide premarital debt, or establish asset-sharing rules. A fair prenup reflects shared decisions and future planning—not one-sided protection.

Myth 5: Prenups Can Include Anything You Want

Truth: Some terms are unenforceable under California law. You cannot limit child support obligations or include unethical demands. A licensed Orange County attorney ensures your agreement only includes legally enforceable provisions.

Myth 6: Prenups Are Only Useful If You Divorce

Truth: Prenups protect both partners during marriage too. They define financial roles, clarify tax responsibilities, and can even plan for one partner's business. They're also helpful in estate planning, especially for blended families.

Myth 7: It's Too Late if You're Already Engaged

Truth: You can sign a prenup up until your wedding day (though it's advised to finalize it weeks in advance). If you're already married, a postnuptial agreement offers similar protections. At Jos Family Law, our attorneys help clients at any stage of the process.
